VOICE FROM THE PEWS

Where Scripture meets real life

Fr Myk Belonio, OSA

As a priest, Father's Day has always invited mixed feelings in me. On one hand, I think of my own father and the many lessons he taught me, often without saying very much. On the other hand, I find myself reflecting on what it means to be called "Father" in the life of the Church.

When I was younger, I thought fatherhood was mainly about providing, protecting, and leading. As the years have gone by, I have come to appreciate something deeper. Fatherhood, whether in family life or in priestly ministry, is really about making room in one's heart for others.

Throughout my priesthood journey, I have been blessed by the witness of many fathers. I have seen fathers work long hours yet still find time to listen to their children. I have seen fathers carry private worries so that their families might feel secure. I have watched fathers remain faithful through sickness, disappointment, and uncertainty. These moments rarely make headlines, but they reveal a quiet heroism that deserves recognition.

At the same time, I have come to understand priesthood itself as a form of spiritual fatherhood. A priest does not become a father through biological ties, but through a relationship of love, care, and responsibility for God's people. We share joys and sorrows, celebrate milestones, walk with people through grief, and try, despite our own limitations, to point others towards Christ.

What strikes me most is that both vocations require the same thing: presence. The people entrusted to us do not need perfection. They need someone who stays. Someone who listens. Someone who remains faithful when life becomes difficult.

This is what I admire most about St. Joseph, the patron saint of fathers. Scripture records none of his words, yet his life speaks volumes. He protected, guided, and loved with humility and quiet strength. He reminds us that fatherhood is not measured by recognition but by faithful presence.

This Father's Day, I give thanks for my own father, for the fathers in our parish, and for the privilege of sharing in spiritual fatherhood as a priest. Let us pray for all fathers, living and deceased, that they may know how deeply their sacrifices are appreciated and how profoundly their love shapes the lives of others.

May God bless all fathers, and may St. Joseph watch over them always. Happy Father's Day.

A Letter from Our
Catechist Coordinator

Ursula Hallaway

Dear Friends,

The end of the year will be here before we know it and I am starting to look at next year's Special Religious Education (SRE) classes. We are in need of some new Catechists for next year's classes.

I wish that I could show you the joy that is present in our ministry- joy between our Catechists and joy that we receive from the beautiful friendships that we make with our students. The greatest joy is feeling that, at the end of the year, we've "done our bit" to teach more than 800 children in our Parish about God. What an achievement!

Teaching children about our faith is, truly, an amazing way to deepen our own knowledge and understanding of our own faith. I have learnt so much about the meaning of the stories in the Old Testament, the Sacraments and the stories of Jesus and how they relate to me.

The greatest privilege has been to teach my students how to pray. So many students have so much going on in their little lives- I pray that they remember that their friend, Jesus, is always with them as they grow.

Please spend some time thinking about whether you might be able to take a 30-minute class once a week. Our Catechists are great at helping each other out when someone is away on holidays etc so support and help is available. The training is easy to understand and we are given a year to complete the 16 hours. A manual and student workbooks are provided.

There will be posters up at the back of the church with the teaching days/times. Some Catechists teach in their lunch break and others Team Teach with a friend. Others prefer to have their own class so that they can plan their lessons in their own time and when it suits them. Some people are Helpers and this is a huge help to our Catechists. Some are fill-ins for regular Catechists.

We have a lot of fun along the way and our ministry is so important. You don't have to be experienced- we just ask that you come with a willing heart. Come and experience the joy of bringing the children to Jesus- what a privilege it is!

Have a wonderful week.
